Report Redfern Alive in Jungle

PAIR TALK TO AMERICAN AVIATOR

Long-Missing Pilot Is Held by Indian Tribe, According to Tale

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Feb. 20. (AP)—Alfred Harred, newspaperman of Paramaribo, declared today that he and Art Williams, American pilot, had found the long-missing Paul Redfern alive in the Tumac Humac mountains in Western Guiana.

The fliers said they were forced to leave Redfern in the hands of an Indian tribe which will not permit him to escape.

Crippled By Fall
Harred said Redfern was crippled as the result of the crash which, on Aug. 26, 1927, ended his attempt to make a solo flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Rio de Janeiro.

Harred and Williams returned to civilization after a flight into the back country in an effort to locate the American. Their story tends to corroborate one told months ago by Tom Koch, German-American explorer.

Redfern, all three said, is the captive of a wild Indian tribe which holds him in awe because he came out of the skies and which will not let him escape.

Harred said that after he and Williams flew into the interior, they saw remains of Redfern's plane hanging on the branch of a large tree.

Talk With Redfern
Later, they found the missing American, dressed in ragged undershirt and drawers.

As they chatted with him, they said, 500 Indians with poisoned spears and other weapons surrounded them.

"When the Indians saw we intended to take Redfern away," said Harred, "they threatened us with spears."

"On Redfern's advice we left, waiting four days in the district in the hope of effecting a rescue, but eventually we had to return without him."

Harred said Redfern's arms and legs were broken in the crash of (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 1)

Rhineland, Who Wed Negro, Dies

NEW YORK, Feb. 20. (AP)—Leonard Kip Rhineland, 36, member of a socially prominent family involved in a sensational divorce case in 1929, died today of pneumonia at Long Beach, Long Island. In 1929 Rhineland was granted a divorce decree in Las Vegas, Nev., from Alice Jones, who testimony showed was the daughter of a Negro cab driver.

Society was startled by their marriage on Oct. 14, 1924. Rhineland, who had come into a fortune, then was 22 and his bride 23.

'DEAD MAN'S SPELL' WORKS

His Mirror Sticks To Table

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Feb. 20. (AP)—A mirror that a half dozen witnesses declare stuck to a metal table top where Jeffrey Derosier, 38, tossed it as he died in a hospital here gave this town one of its most puzzling mysteries in years today.

"You won't be able to pick it up," were Derosier's last words, the witnesses assert. For 24 hours the mirror defied the efforts of Harvey Davenport, Derosier's ward mate; Dr. F. J. Maloney, his physician, and hospital attendants to remove it from the table. At last Miss Adeline Knopf, a nurse, picked it up with an ice pick.

'Billy' Dies

"Billy" Mitchell, 57, former assistant chief of the army air service, who died last yesterday in New York. His open conflict with superiors on war department aviation policy resulted in his court-martial in 1925 and he was suspended from the service for five years. He resigned his commission in 1926 and continued his criticisms of the war department from the lecture platform.

DEATH TAKES MITCHELL

Air Force Commander Dies Suddenly in New York City

NEW YORK, Feb. 20. (AP)—Gen. William (Billy) Mitchell today was taking the rest that never ends. "Billy"—as he was to the men of the United States air forces—died unexpectedly in Doctors Hospital late yesterday. He was 57 years of age.

III Since December
Ill since his appearance here early last December at a congressional committee's inquiry on patents, General Mitchell entered the hospital Jan. 28 for what his doctors said was "merely a rest."

He had come here from his family home near Warrenton, Va., where he had recovered from a heart seizure.

The first American officer to fly over the enemy's lines in the World War, Mitchell emerged from the conflict critical of the policies of the war and navy departments on aviation defense.

Suspended from Army
His criticism, sharpened by four years as assistant to the chief of the air service in Washington, brought his court-martial after he returned to the service and was stationed as a colonel at the army's flying school in San Antonio, Tex.

His suspension from the service, followed by his own resignation, intensified his critical attitude toward the government's air preparedness policy.

PURSE-SEINE FISHING BAN IS UPHELD

Judge Rules County's Fish Preserve Law Valid; Appeal Due

The public's right to unspoiled fishing off the Orange county coast was protected today in a decision by Superior Judge H. G. Ames.

Judge Ames upheld validity of the legislature's bill creating the fish preserve extending along the county's coastline. His decision was rendered in the case of Joseph Giampe, San Pedro commercial fisherman, arrested several weeks ago for fishing in the preserve in violation of law. Mr. Giampe sought a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that the bill is unconstitutional.

Preserved For Public
The decision by Judge Ames will preserve the fishing grounds for the public, since the bill prohibits purse-seining or the wholesale taking of fish by commercial operators. The decision upholds contentions of Deputy District Attorneys James Walker and Harold McCabe.

Arch Ekdale, San Pedro, attorney for Mr. Giampe, announced he will seek at once to secure a writ of habeas corpus for his client from the district court of appeal. Mr. Giampe was remanded to the county jail by Judge Ames' decision.

Mr. Ekdale's contention was that the legislature has the power to enact laws for entire fish and game districts, but that legislation for part of a district is unconstitutional. He contended that the county's fish preserve is only part of district 19.

Court Cites Reasons
In his opinion the court called attention to the fact that Mr. Ekdale previously had admitted that if the legislature had named or numbered the fish preserve, it thereby would have created an entirely new district, and that the bill creating the preserve then would have been unconstitutional. Judge Ames said he was of the opinion that by enacting the bill the legislature did create another fish and game district, even though it was not named or numbered. The court also said he could see no reason why the legislature could not alter a district. The code, he said, does not provide any requirement for naming or numbering a district when it is created.

What Bill Provides
In seeking his writ before the fourth district court of appeals at Fresno, Mr. Ekdale will base his arguments on the same points raised in the case here, he said. The fish preserve bill, created at the last session of the legislature, prohibits use of seines or nets larger than a certain specified size. The purpose of the bill is to prevent wholesale taking of small fish. These small fish are eaten by the larger ones. Thus, by preserving a food supply for the large fish, the fishing grounds are protected for the public.

Resents Speech By Coughlin

Ransacking his vocabulary for adequate words, Representative John O'Connor (D., N. Y.), chairman of the house rules committee, is shown in action as he described his threat to kick Father Charles E. Coughlin "from the capitol to the White House," as a result of the famous priest's attack on him in a speech. In congress later he apologized for the vigor of his words but renewed his counter-attack upon Coughlin. (Associated Press photo.)

Patriarchs Fall

Old Trees on South Main Sacrificed to Progress

By BOB GUILD

They yell "timber" just like they do in the high hills when one of the giant eucalypti comes crashing down along South Main.

Here the city is removing a row of these patriarchs, planted 60 years ago, to permit the widening of the street. Long a familiar skyline sight along the road to Newport, these friendly old trees will be missed.

But that time-honored sentiment, "Woodman, spare that tree!" Touch not a single bough!" fails to apply to this particular deforestation work. There's a reason. The reason is that the giant gum trees are rooted not only in antiquity, but in alkali soil. Antiquity honors a tree; alkali only weakens its foundations. As they have stood for many years, these trees have presented a distinct menace to the lives of nearby householders and passing motorists.

This fact was not generally known until the work of removing them was begun, but when the first trees were toppled, their rotten roots and poor groundhold was disclosed.

One more reason for their danger lies in the fact that when they were planted in what was then pasture land, very wet, water levels at that particular spot were no more than two feet from the top of the ground, according to City Engineer J. L. McBride and C. H. Caldwell, superintendent of the job.

Eucalyptus roots will not grow in water, and these spread out concentrically about a foot and a half to two feet beneath the surface of the ground. When they rotted from effects of the

OHIO STRIKES 'WELCOMED'

Goodyear Tire, Glass and Chemical Firm Plants Closed

AKRON, Ohio, Feb. 20. (AP)—Labor troubles beset three Ohio cities today, causing idleness to approximately 16,000 workers.

A federal labor conciliator took over the task here of trying to settle a dispute between workers and the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company, that has made 14,000 persons idle. Production was a standstill as massed pickets blocked entrances to three Goodyear plants. The policy to be followed in laying off men is the issue.

In nearby Barberton, the Columbia Chemical company closed its plant because 250 of the 900 workers began a "sit down" protest in sympathy with 50 union pipe fitters who asked a 4-cent-an-hour wage boost.

Twenty-four women employees of Libbey-Owens-Ford company's laminated glass plant at Toledo started a walkout that attracted 200 employees because girls not members of the American Flat Glass Workers' union worked beside them. Officials announced closing of the plant which they said employs 1400.

CATTLE ELECTROCUTED
SANTA CRUZ, Feb. 20. (AP)—Power wires blown down by a storm electrocuted seven cattle near here.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20. (AP)—Congressional investigation of the Townsend and other old age pension movements was "welcomed" by officials of the Townsend organization as "wonderful publicity for us."

The house voted 240 to 4 yesterday to set up a committee of eight members for the inquiry.

Robert E. Clements, national secretary and co-founder of the plan to pay everyone over 60 years of age $200 a month pension, said: "These monkeys have played right into our hands. They are giving us the biggest piece of publicity we ever could have hoped to get. We shall be exonerated, and our pension plan forced to a vote."

In a formal statement Clements charged that the investigation was "pure and unadulterated political persecution."

On the house floor, Representative Celler (D., Ky.) charged that the Townsend organization yielded $2000 a week each to Dr. Townsend and Clements.

Representative Bell (D., Mo.) probable chairman of the house committee to investigate the Townsend and other old age pension movements, said today he was "sure this committee will want to interrogate Dr. Townsend."

DEATH CHAIR FRIGHTENS BRUNO

Condemned Man Shown Seat at Trenton; Attorney Quits

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)
TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 20.—The electric chair in which Bruno Richard Hauptmann has been doomed to die the week of March 30 was shown to him in a dramatic episode in the death house yesterday. It was learned today.

Hauptmann peered into the death chamber during the interview with Samuel S. Leibowitz, New York attorney, and C. Lloyd Fisher, chief counsel.

"Like Caged Animal"
"Hauptmann was like a caged animal," said a person who was present at the interview.

"He continually grasped the bars of his cell with white, clenched fists, and thrust his face between the bars."

"During the interview Leibowitz insisted that a wire screen be removed from behind Hauptmann's cell. When this was done, Hauptmann could reach through the bars and touch the green door leading to the execution chamber and by extending his hand could look through the little peephole in the door."

Stares at Chair
"Leibowitz opened the peephole and Hauptmann looked through. He stared at the electric chair for a minute and blanched. He shivered and sighed and lost his voice momentarily, but no tears came to his eyes."

It was after this interview that Leibowitz announced his withdrawal from the case in an announcement indicating he believed the condemned man was guilty.

"Hauptmann understands very clearly that his last card has been played and he has lost," Leibowitz said.

Leibowitz and Fisher told Hauptmann, according to a reliable source, that there was no new evidence and Gov. Harold G. Hoffman had told them he would not grant Hauptmann another reprieve.

Points Out Flaws
"The scene in the death house was worse than anything I have ever seen in any electrocution chamber," this source said.

"Leibowitz did not request Hauptmann to change his story, but in pointing out the numerous flaws in Hauptmann's defense, he gave the prisoner every opportunity to tell the truth if he had not already done so."

"Hauptmann said, 'Dot handwriting is the worstest thing against me.'"

Fine Fox $245,082; Arrest Ordered

NEW YORK, Feb. 20. (AP)—Federal Judge William Bondy today ordered issuance of a warrant for the arrest of William Fox, former motion picture magnate, on a contempt of court charge for allegedly failing to submit to an examination in supplementary proceedings ordered by the court.

Judge Bondy fined Fox $225,082.03, the full amount he allegedly owes the Capital Company, a California corporation, and $10,000 in attorney's fees.

The court ordered that Fox be held in custody until payment is made of the two amounts, or until he submits to examination and pays the $10,000.

COTTON WILL BE DELEGATE

San Clemente Leader on Slate Picked by President

H. H. (Ham) Cotton of San Clemente, right wing Democratic leader, has been named as one of President Roosevelt's own slate of delegates to the Democratic national convention from California, an Associated Press dispatch from Washington said today.

Postmaster General Farley said that Mr. Cotton's name was included on the much-disputed list despite the fact that Epics in California have served notice that if the delegation includes "reactionaries" like Mr. Cotton, they could not support it.

Postmaster General Farley said that the personnel of the delegates slate would be announced within the next 24 hours, and that it would be "one of compromise."

"I may be able to make a full list public this afternoon, but at any rate it will be announced within 24 hours," he said.

When a reporter mentioned to the postmaster general that Mr. Cotton's inclusion would precipitate a break, he is said to have replied "it couldn't be helped; politics is a game of compromise, you know."

MAY 'AIR' DRUNK TRIALS

Urges Courtroom Broadcast

"This program is coming to you direct from the city court, where City Judge J. G. Mitchell in the next hour will pronounce judgment in several cases of drunkenness and drunk driving."

If an idea advanced today by Justice of the Peace K. E. Morrison "to shame drunks and drunk drivers into law observance" is adopted in Santa Ana, the public may some day hear such an announcement broadcast from a local radio station.

Justice Morrison's idea is to broadcast such cases, and in doing so make arrests for drunkenness and drunk driving so undesirable that habitual violators will be more careful.

"My idea is to make drunkenness a social misdemeanor," Justice Morrison said. "There are too many people who wink at drunkenness, and have little fear of publicity when they are arrested. If their cases are broadcast, they will think twice before they risk the chance of such universal publicity."

"I am not offering this idea as a substitute for Chief of Police Floyd Howard's rock pile scheme. I think his plan is excellent, and it is sure to have its effect. I would like to see the scheme go into effect."

Justice Morrison explained that the broadcasting idea is not original with him. He said that he knew of one town where the idea was adopted with astounding effects. The city judge nearly went out of business because of a sudden cessation of drunk cases.

HITLER PUSHES NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN ITALY AND GERMANY

SEEKING NEW TIE-UP WITH FASCISTS

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)
ROME, Feb. 20.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, rather than Premier Mussolini, is taking the initiative in intense Italo-German diplomatic exchanges, authoritative German circles said today, in an effort to bring about a complete rapprochement.

Ulrich von Russell, German ambassador to Italy, went to Munich last week, had a long conversation with Fulvio Suvich, Italian under-secretary for foreign affairs, these sources disclosed.

Files to Berlin
After his audience with Suvich, the German ambassador flew back to Berlin yesterday morning, at the same time that the Italian under-secretary was talking with Egon Berger-Waldenegg, Austrian foreign minister, at Florence.

Suvich returned to Rome today to report to Premier Mussolini on the progress of the negotiations. A spokesman for German quarters said Hitler had realized the third reich was isolated in Europe by the Franco-Soviet mutual assistance pact and by Franco-British military conversations.

He realized that Italy also was isolated by the operations of sanctions, being applied by the League of Nations as punishment for the Fascist warfare in Ethiopia, this source said.

Seek Common View
We wanted to establish a common viewpoint between them. Consequently, it was asserted, the two dictators are now exchanging views on fundamental questions such as the League of Nations, the Franco-Soviet pact and Austria.

The Hitler initiative in resuming the pourparlers with Italy followed a similar initiative by Il Duce several weeks ago in attempting to better relations between their two countries.

Some Rome newspapers published in juxta position today the news of the conversations between Suvich and Berger-Waldenegg at Florence yesterday, von Hassell's visit to Berlin, Mussolini's reception to the Polish ambassador here last night, a visit by Hermann Wilhelm Goerring to Warsaw and French press nervousness over the possibility of an Italo-German rapprochement.

his plane but that medicine men had set the bones. He said Redfern walked with crutches.

Harred's account was denied by Williams, who Harred said plotted him into the jungle.

Paul Rinaldo Redfern of Savannah, Ga., was 25 years old when he took off from Brunswick, Ga., Aug. 25, 1927, on an attempt to fly nonstop to Rio de Janeiro.

His plane was last sighted on the following day 300 miles east of the Bahamas.

Wife Confident
Redfern's wife, Gertrude, who lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hillbrand, in Toledo, Ohio, long has believed that her husband still is alive.

Tom Roch, the first explorer to tell the story which Alfred Harred told today, has presented several affidavits to United States consular officials in South America and Panama, declaring his story is true.

The Elbert S. Waid post of the American Legion, Cristobal, Canal Zone, has an expedition in British Guiana at the present time trying to find Redfern.

U. S. ORDERS INVESTIGATION OF REDFERN REPORT
WASHINGTON, Feb. 20. (AP)—The state department today cabled instructions to the American consul at Trinidad, British West Indies, to investigate the statement by Alfred Harred at Georgetown, British Guiana, that he had seen and talked to Paul Redfern, missing American aviator.

The department acted on the basis of reports quoting Harred as saying Redfern was held captive in the jungle fastness of Guiana by an Indian tribe.

REDFERN'S FATHER HAS PERMISSION FOR RESCUE
COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 20. (AP)—Dr. Frederick Redfern, elderly professor whose missing aviator son, Paul, was reported located today, said he had permission from the Brazilian government to take steps to rescue him from a savage Indian tribe said to be holding him captive.

The elder Redfern said he was uncertain whether his son was on Brazilian territory, but had been assured of the cooperation of the Brazilian boundary commission, now working in approximately the territory where the young flier was reported found.

"We have been gathering evidence and working as quietly as possible during all that time, leading up to the arrest and detention of as many of the gang as possible."

News of the arrests was not given out by authorities until today, it was explained, for fear of frightening other members of the gang into hiding. Estrada, termed the leader, has been held incommunicado for the past week in the San Diego jail.

Duarte and Barba told officials they had paid Estrada $7 each to be smuggled into the United States.

The fresh blast of air from the open doors helped revive Dr. Halpin. Another doctor was summoned to his aid, but before the second physician arrived, Dr. Halpin had struggled through the delivery. Neither mother nor child apparently suffered any lasting ill effects from the experience.

Dr. Halpin, still ill today, said he believed the room had been filled with carbon monoxide gas, but ventured no opinion as to its origin.

THURSTON CASE COMES TO END

The final hearing in the bankruptcy proceedings of the Joseph Thurston estate at Laguna Beach was scheduled for today in the office of Ben Tarver, referee in bankruptcy.

It was expected at that time that W. A. Taylor, trustee, would make his final report and receive a discharge.

Mr. Taylor, as trustee, will have considerable property to turn back to the estate, he announced.

The matter of fees for the appraisers, a subject of considerable controversy, is a settled issue, it was understood today. N. E. West, and Mrs. Borgheld Stephens, two of the appraisers, have been paid $300 each, while Ashby Turner, the third appraiser, has been paid $450. The only matter remaining to be settled is that of fees for Referee Tarver.

LEADERS AID REGISTERING CAMPAIGN

Orange county leaders will cooperate wholeheartedly in the state-wide campaign announced today for persuading voters to register before March 26. The latter date is the deadline for registering to qualify for casting ballots at the May 5 primary election.

E. M. Sundquist, executive vice president of the Republican assembly for this assembly district, said today he will give all the aid possible to the registration campaign launched by Robert Little of the Republican state central committee.

Mr. Little announced at San Francisco that more than 100 speakers will campaign throughout the state to persuade Californians to register.

California has a permanent registration law, but the legislature may call for a complete new registration whenever it sees fit. This was done by the last legislature. Thus it is necessary for everyone to register, whether they voted at the last general election or not.

March 26 is the last day to register for the May 5 primary. March 5 is the last day to register for the April 14 elections in sixth-class cities. All incorporated cities in Orange county except Santa Ana are sixth class cities and will hold elections this April. July 16 is the deadline to register for the August 25 primary election. Sept. 24 is the last day to register for the general election of Nov. 3.

Hot Congressional Tax Fight Looms

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—A hammer-and-tongs fight over taxes and government spending was in the making in congress today despite the strenuous efforts of campaign-conscious leaders to keep the session fairly tranquil and end it quickly.

These two developments threatened the congressional peace:

1. Sharp increases in the number of persons on work relief were reported by WPA, which set the current figure at 3,779,770. This is nearly 300,000 more than the 3,500,000 goal originally set for the $4,000,000 relief drive.

Powerful "liberal" senators, fighting any deep slashes in next year's relief funds, are expected to seize upon the new figures to back their argument that huge expenditures must continue.

2. Senate liberals disclosed they would demand a broader and higher income tax structure. Among them is Senator La Follette (Prog., Wis.) who wants to boost income levies on the wealthy and tax several million smaller incomes now exempt.

CAN'T REMEMBER WEDDING, SO HE ASKS ANNULMENT

Paul J. Donohue today sought annulment of his marriage, which he said he could not remember.

The complaint said he and Florence Donohue were so intoxicated at the time of their wedding in Chicago Oct. 6, 1934, that they had no comprehension of what they were doing.

Mr. Donohue said that two hours later he realized the " enormity of his act " and that he left his wife and has never lived with her.

Farm prices for popcorn in December, 1934, were close to $5 per 100 pounds; the price to farmers for the 1935 crop was $2.15 per 100 pounds.

Ear-Muffs Prove Traffic Violator Only a Tourist

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20. (AP)—"I'm a stranger here, and I didn't understand the zone markings on the curbing," said H. G. Helmle of Chicago, in traffic court.

"Prove it," answered the judge.

Embarrassed, Helmle felt in his pockets. Out came a pair of ear-muffs.

"You're a stranger, all right," declared the judge. "You're

NEW LIQUOR PLAN URGED BY JEROME

Larger powers for local authorities in liquor license and control matters were urged today by Supervisor W. C. Jerome as he left for Los Angeles to attend a conference on this matter called by Gov. Frank F. Merriam.

Spokesmen for the state association of county supervisors the California League of Municipalities and other local officials attended the Los Angeles meeting, called to formulate a program on liquor control, welfare and taxation.

Jerome Tells Ideas

The gathering was to consider a proposal for placing enforcement of liquor laws in the hands of local authorities. Jurisdiction now rests almost entirely with the state board of equalization.

"I do not like to see a liquor license issued in rural areas that has not first been approved by the district attorney and sheriff," said Mr. Jerome today. "I believe in similar approval by city officials before licenses are issued in cities. These men know local conditions."

Urges New System

"I would like to see a system developed so that the license granting authorities would be in closer contact with local officials, and so that the latter would be able to make closer contacts with the license granting powers to have licenses revoked where this action is merited."

Mr. Jerome also said he believes much of the police power in regard to liquor matters should rest with local officers.

FIND 'NAKED MAN' WAS A NUDE BOY

"The Naked Man of the Hills," subject of a search by deputy sheriffs during the past three days, was run down yesterday in an orange orchard on Lemon Heights. The much-sought "naked man" turned out to be a 15-year-old boy, son of residents of Lemon Heights.

Deputies James Workman, James Musick and Fred Humiston didn't find anyone nude, but saw a 15-year-old boy, fully clad, who answered descriptions of the playboy nudist.

He was questioned and, according to officers, admitted he had been in the habit recently of running through the trees without clothing. He gave no explanation. He was taken to his home and turned over to his father. The father promised to take care of the situation.

COOK WANTS NAME CLEARED Asks Polar Claims Upheld

CHICAGO, Feb. 20. (AP)—Dr. Frederick Cook, storm center of the "North Pole Fraud" that shook the world a generation ago, came out of retirement today to demand that science recognize his claim to discovery of the pole in 1908.

White-haired and weary of being jeered as a "faker," the 70-year-old explorer asked that his name be cleared "before I die."

In a letter written to the American Geographical Society on the 28th anniversary of his departure from Greenland, Dr. Cook requested "a full and impartial investigation of my story."

His polar discovery claim—disputed by the late Admiral Robert E. Peary, who said he attained the pole a year after the date given by Cook—has been upheld by every expedition since his own, Dr. Cook declared.

His description of the polar regions has been verified by Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Lincoln Ellsworth, Roald Amundsen, and Gen. Umberto Nobile, the physician-scientist contended in an interview.

Even Peary's own account of polar conditions was virtually identical with the story Cook had published a week before, the doctor said.

Aged Pair Found Burned to Death

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20. (AP)—Carl S. Barbour, 66, and his wife, Dorothea, 61, were found burned to death today in their boarding house under circumstances pointing to foul play.

The charred bodies of the couple lay on a bloodstained bed. Mrs. Barbour's skull had apparently been crushed. Money kept by Barbour, who managed the 15-room boarding house near the business district, was missing.

Detective Lieut. Leroy Sanderson said there was an odor of kerosene in the room, and that a watch was found attached by wires to an electric heater. This, he said, may have been the machine that started the fire.

COUNSELOR SPEAKS TO TAXPAYERS' GROUP TONIGHT

J. M. Pierce, tax counselor for the California State Taxpayers' association, taking as his subject, "State Budget and State Taxes," will be the speaker at tonight's meeting of the executive board and committee members of the Orange County Tax council.

Such matters of government as the proposed repeal of the state sales tax, and consolidation of county offices also will be discussed. Supervisor W. C. Jerome will report on the governor's Sacramento tax conference.

The council meets at 6:30 o'clock at James cafe, Secretary George A. Raymer said.

Opening of the new 40-foot road across Boulder dam affords a number of new auto trips through the California and Arizona desert, as well as in southern Nevada.

FURTHER SRA STAFF CUT LOOMS

Seven more administrative employees of the Orange County State Relief administration probably will be cut from the payroll the first of next week as a further economy move, Supervisor Terrance Holman said today.

Cuts in the staff of SRA will be made at more or less regular intervals, it was explained, from now until the final dissolution of the administration as a relief agency is affected.

SRA ultimately is destined to become a part of the state welfare department, to be administered as a branch of county welfare activities, according to plans disclosed by Gov. Frank Merriam.

The administrative staff in Orange county now is at the lowest ebb since the establishment of the agency, with only 47 still employed in directing positions.

Approximately 600 cases eligible for Works Progress administration assignment still remain to be transferred, Mr. Holman said. This work is going forward as quickly as possible, because of drastically reduced operating budgets throughout the state.

PROBE CALF THEFT

Members of the sheriff's farm theft detail are investigating the asserted theft of a 10-month-old calf, reported missing yesterday from the Milton Armstrong ranch, Olinda. Officers found that a wire fence surrounding the pasture in which the calf had been kept had been torn down.

Russia Rejects Boundary Plan

MOSCOW, Feb. 20. (AP)—Suggestions for establishment of a mixed commission to fix the Soviet-Manchoukuoan frontiers were rejected today in an official announcement, made public by Izvestia, the Russian government organ.

The announcement said the boundary between Soviet far eastern territory and the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchoukuo was already fixed by treaty.

William Robbins, charged with grand theft of $300 from Mary Wallace, was found guilty late yesterday by a jury in Presiding Judge G. K. Scovel's superior court. The jury deliberated 20 minutes. He will be sentenced on Friday.

The woman, complaining witness in the case, said she gave the money to Wallace when he told her he needed it to secure a bond in connection with a new job at Long Beach. She said he took the money and did not come back.

BREAKFASTERS GET TAX TALK

Taxes, as viewed by R. C. Hoiles, was the subject discussed this morning at the Breakfast club meeting in the Main cafeteria. The speaker is a student of economics, especially in the field of taxation, and he presented the subject from several different angles. He spoke of legislation adopted to include those who attempted to evade their just share of the tax burden, and favored the theory of graduated tax. He contended the sales tax was not a fair way of imposing the burden, but should include luxury taxes as well. He requested an expression on a questionnaire he submitted involving four different subjects, as follows:

1. If you spend $10,000 upon yourself, should you pay more than 10 times as much tax as if you spend $1,000 upon yourself? That is, should you be taxed on a graduated basis, upward, as you spend a higher rate for luxuries than for necessities?

2. If you had a large income obtained from working and producing, should you be taxed so long as you used it to make equipment easier and provided your wealth is taxed on graduated basis, upward, when you do not use it? 3. Should the rich, who do not risk their wealth in business, be taxed on a graduated basis, upward, on income resulting when they lend their money to others who are willing to take risks.

4. Would you like to see some political party adopt these principles in its platform? The address was closed by the four questions becoming the subject of a symposium.

The guest speaker for next week's meeting of the Breakfast club will be Ted Cook of Laguna Beach, well known columnist.

NO WATER ROT IN COUNTY GROVES

The prospect of water rot, which an Associated Press dispatch said is causing 10 to 30 per cent damage in some navel orange groves in the Ontario district, is not feared here, it was said today.

Cecil J. Marks, field secretary for the Orange county farm bureau, said that in his trips throughout the citrus areas of the county he has seen no evidence of such rot.

He explained that the Ontario district had received a much heavier rain during the recent storms than Orange county had and expressed a belief that water may have stood in some low groves in that and the Cucamonga district.

Root rot is caused by standing water seeping into and around tree roots; brown rot, which attacks the trees above ground, is caused by excessive wetness. It is believed to be root rot that is affecting the Ontario navel.

REASONS FOR FRUIT MARKET PACT EXPLAINED BY LYON

"Limiting of shipments of citrus fruit results in increasing consumption."

Strange as it may seem, this is the truth according to Supervisor LeRoy Lyon of Anaheim, Orange county member of the growers' advisory committee for market control. Mr. Lyon's remarks were made in connection with comments on the injunction suit filed in superior court yesterday to establish constitutionality of the state agricultural adjustment act on which intra-state market control for oranges is based.

Evils Are Cited
When there is no market control, Mr. Lyon explained, the result is disorderly market conditions, frequent fluctuation of prices and lack of confidence in the product on the part of dealers. Furthermore, if 11 cars of fruit are shipped on a given day to a consuming center with only a 10-car capacity, the price is beaten down and the market demoralized.

Under these conditions, he explained, dealers will not bother to push citrus fruit. They will keep on hand enough to have oranges when they are called for, but will not make an aggressive attempt to sell them. This is natural because, if they buy fruit on one day and then find that the next

'Proven Fact'
As a result, limitation of shipments actually stimulates sale of fruit and ultimately results in increased demand and consumption, he said.

"This is not just a theory but an established, proven fact," he asserted.

The injunction case started here yesterday is an attempt to support the market control program through establishing the validity of the California agricultural adjustment act on which it is based. The suit was filed against Withers Brothers, Placencia Packers, by District Attorney W. F. Menton. The defendants were accused by the complaint of shipping fruit without having an allotment for such shipments as required by law. Presiding Judge G. K. Scovel has granted a temporary restraining order preventing the defendants from shipping fruit until they apply to the growers' advisory committee for an allotment. On Feb. 23 at 2 p. m., they have been ordered to show cause why a temporary injunction should not be issued.

POLICE REPORTS

Brick Dust

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling Editor
By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

OCCASIONALLY — which means once in a while — county editors have its so-called compensations.

For instance. Recently we criticized a news story received from "Oke" Maxwell at San Juan Capistrano — just like the Boss criticizes our own, at times. In reply we received this:

"There was an old guy named Brick.
He bawled me out until I was sick;
He pounded my grammar
With a forty-pound hammer
And now my brain won't click."
Which, even the Boss would admit, would be a good excuse for not having any news for today's paper. But, as you'll see by perusing the adjacent columns "Oke" did right well by himself.

We're going to try his poem, overhauled to fit the Boss, the next time any remarks are made.

Incidentally, "Oke" tells us that "Pampas", a nag which he claims has been flitting home ahead of lots of others at Santa Anita, is a native of San Clemente.

"Pampas" was brought up at the H. H. Cotton stables there, he says, and adds that "Pampas" is justly proud of the best performance. However, our correspondent adds, other residents claim that climate of the Spanish village has a great deal to do with the breath-taking gallops of the local steed.

"Oke" ends, plaintively, that he has a playful little brown dog with medium blue eyes and a pointed tail, just begging for a home. (Yeah, the whole dog, we mean.)

Which, added to George Wright's seven, Mrs. Powell's "Rags" and our "Feller," makes 10 doggies which won't get along. They're all nice dogs, and we'd be glad to introduce 'em to a prospective owner.

If the next door neighbor hints that he wants any number of dogs, starting from one, just whisper in our direction, huh?

Someone who signs himself "Old Pepper" — just the opposite of "Old Salt" — we suppose — sends us a letter wrapped epistle by carrier pigeon. Don't know whether he's bragging about going fishing, or is mad because he became seasick. We favor the latter, and are suspicious of Robert "Deep Water" Guild, fellow writer. Here's what he claims:

"Tops in thrills is being shot at. There are many ways of encompassing this thrill, such as leaving bedrooms by windows, getting in duels or going to war."

There is also the method known as lobster poaching. This is not so well-known, but very effective, provided that's what you're after. Thrills, I mean, or lobsters, either one.

Walt Sorensen and I (Walt was the wharfinger at Balboa, lobster fisherman, deep sea voyager and anchovy expert) went fishing for lobsters one day.

He had traps to be pulled. Pulling traps is a quaint old fisherman's phrase in vogue among the lobsterers at Balboa. I had a yen (from the old English verb, to yearn, i. e., 'yearn a living') for deep sea travel, so we went to pull his traps.

Out the mouth of Balboa bay we went in his one-cylinder anti-aerostrial put-put, now an abandoned relic, and forth to the lobsterers.

When I was a sprig of a youth I was told that lobsterers were green till they were boiled. Those are Atlantic lobsterers, I guess. On the west coast these crustaceans known as lobsters are red. They are really crayfish.

But I'm diversing. In the manner of Brick Gaines' journal — this is one of diverse things you've ever had in your column.

The sun made playful sparkles on the surface of the sea. A litmus-blue shadow was clipped painfully from the prow of our boat as we approached the first trap.

"There is a trick to this," said Walt. "You pull it this, and push the middle valve down, and the lobsterers."

But I diverse again. Diverse (round and round, you know) drives me screwy, anyway.

Said Walt, "You land-lubber, tote that rope."

So I pulled, and after infinites of waiting, up came a queer sort of a wire-enclosed box-shaped affair, filled with squirming denizens of the deep.

"Not so bad," gloated my ancient mariner.

"Not so bad," echoed I.

"You see," he said, "On my traps I put a mark like this: an 'X', so to speak. If I see that mark floating on a can I know it's one of my traps. Otherwise, no."

"Yes," I murmured, clutching queasily at my plexus as we plunged into another green valley and up again.

Well, as I was saying.

We made the mistake that day of pulling a trap or two marked with an 'O'. Not that anyone would care, provided they didn't see us.

I felt just like a rumrunner as they drew down on us.

SANTIAGO GROWERS RECEIVE $1,356,061 FOR 1935 CROP

MANAGER IN REPORT FOR 1934-35

Average of 93c a Field Box for Valencias Is Told by R. E. Gross

ORANGE.—A total of $1,356,061 to growers affiliated with the Santiago Orange Growers' association was reported by R. E. Gross, manager, at the annual meeting of the group, held today in the auditorium of the Intermediate school.

Cash receipts for the season were $1,676,482 which is less than the return for 1934, but more than that of 1933, he said.

Mr. Gross said that 1,401,478 field boxes of fruit were picked, a total exceeded only once in the history of the association, that in 1929. Sales included 1720 cars of valencias and 45 cars of navelis, he reported, with the total crop, including sale of loose fruit equaled the equivalent of 2118 cars.

The average per field box for navelis and 93 cents for regular crop valencias, with offbloom valencias averaging 65 cents, Mr. Gross said. These returns were for the small box used by the Santiago association and must be taken into consideration when thinking of field box averages, he explained.

Navelis ripened reasonably early and shipments were finished Feb. 13, he said. The valencia season started earlier than usual, especially for exports, and the first car was shipped March 28, with the last car leaving the packing house Dec. 2, he reported.

A yearly refund on the season's operations including selling and various revolving funds, amounted to $347,751, which was paid today. Mr. Gross remarked that canning of orange juice is still an unsettled subject and that a full survey and study is being made of the entire situation.

"One fact must be kept in mind," he said, "that canned orange juice is not under prorate control and certainly affect prices received for packed fruit. In closing, Mr. Gross declared that, considering the season as a whole, returns were all that could have been expected."

GARDEN GROVE.—The smallest X-ray tube in the world, now displayed in the medical exhibition at the San Diego fair and to which a Los Angeles paper gave considerable space Wednesday morning, was made by a former Garden Grove boy, Milton Chaffee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chaffee of Nutwood road.

Mr. Chaffee, now associated with the University of California hospital in San Francisco in the X-ray department, also assisted in construction of the large machine used by the hospital and from which the smaller model was patterned.

Born and receiving his early education in Garden Grove, Mr. Chaffee has interested himself in the scientific and inventive fields following graduation from the University of California and a few years ago invented his detector machine which later was used by many law enforcement agencies.

HARBOR DEVELOPMENT AIM OF GROUPS AT NEWPORT

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—All civic organizations are expected soon to be cooperating with the chamber of commerce in directing plans for development of a greater harbor district. Ten of Southern California's leading businessmen named as honorary vice presidents of the chamber, will meet with the chamber directors soon to promote plans for improvement.

The chamber directors will meet in Los Angeles in March with the following honorary vice presidents: Harry J. Bauer, president of the Southern California Edison company; S. M. Griffith, owner of Lido Isle; John F. Jardine, Henry S. MacKay, Jr., Gordon B. Crary, George A. Rogers, who directed the drive for the last harbor development; H. W. Rohl, commodore of the Newport Harbor Yacht club, who built the recent extensions to the jetties here; Glenn L. Martin, airplane manufacturer; James Irvine and Capt. Fred E. Lewis, noted yachtsman and traveler.

Harbor improvement, beautification, greater building and many other phases of development will be undertaken by the two groups, according to the plans.

Widening and beautifications of the westerly entrance to Newport will be one of the first steps for improvement to be taken up by the new board of directors, it was reported today.

CAPISTRANO CITY RULE SOUGHT

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO.—Agitation for incorporation of this community was started yesterday afternoon by residents of the immediate townsite.

Reasons given for the proposed incorporation were that numerous chain baking companies send truckloads of merchandise into the community, competing with local merchants. They do not have to pay any license fees whatever, it was claimed, and do not support the community in any way.

There has been considerable urging for additional police protection for the community, it was reported, as another point in favor of the move. At present the only protection afforded is a constable, whose territory includes from El Toro to San Clemente, including Dana Point and Doheny Park. The county board of supervisors have a petition on file, asking for increased pay for the officer, but to date funds have not been available.

Did You See?

Now We Know

Champ Pilot

Perhaps you noticed it, too: the last six races at Santa Anita yesterday were won by horses starting from No. 2 post position. And, if it makes you feel any better, a $2 parlay would have netted you something like $6500. Six duces—without a wild card in the deck—should make a full hand in any game. Here's the way they stacked up:

Coramine, for $42.80.
Evangelist, for $5.20.
Berenda, for $18.20.
Smuggled In, for $6.80.
Emigrante, for $3.80.
Zevor, for $18.40.

Business was brisk at the local "turf agency" here for a few moments yesterday—brisker than ever, that is. Seems everyone in town had cash on Zevor in the last race and the stampede to the payoff window left the boys short of cash—but all wagers were paid, we're told.

Now we know. Answering our query of yesterday, Bob Guild, who sits across the room from us all day and writes stirring things about almost everything but horses, comes up with an explanation of "dogs" as used in race track parlance.

"Dogs," it seems, are nothing but sticks—hunks of wood. On rainy days these "dogs" are put "up" all along the pole position of the track, thus keeping any horse doing his workout from slipping and digging up the inside of the track too heavily. The nag is thus forced to run in the middle of the strip.

Therefore, when you see the expression "dogs up" you know that the guard is up and that the horse is running faster in his workout than he would if the "dogs" were "down," permitting him to use the inside of the track.

Colorful Joe Rodgers, often called the Napoleon of Nightball, has managed the Huntington Beach Oilers through a trio of successful seasons during which they have won 115 games out of 143 for a remarkable .777 percentage.

Fans are beginning to wonder whether the "Fireball" shortstop-skipper and his boys can maintain this sizzling pace through the 1936 schedule opening in May. In any event, Joe has made up a report that tells us.

Rodgers-managed clubs have been shut out only eight times in three years. Five of these whitewashes occurred in 1933, when Wilbur Stinchfield won for Santa Ana, 1-0; "String" McDonnell and "Chandu" Watson won for Whittier, 3-0 and 2-0; Rudy Heman won for Olive, 1-0; and Louie Neva, now the pitching pride of the Oilers, hung up a 6-0 triumph for Torrance. McDonnell, then in a halcyon uniform, accomplished the feat again in '34 with a 7-0 victory. Stinchfield pitched Long Beach to a 1-0 shut-out while several of the Oilers were missing from the lineup last season, and Venn Botts of Pomona blanked Rodgers and his men, 6-0, in an exhibition.

Huntington Beach has made a remarkable record in National league play-offs. After losing to Torrance, four games to two, in 1933, the Oilers came back to annex both halves of the 1933 season, and to defeat Santa Ana in a torrid series, four games to three, last year.

WILL ABOLISH SWEEPSTAKES

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 20. (AP)—President Manuel Quezon disclosed today he plans to abolish the Philippine National charity sweepstakes in June. The sweeps are held twice a year under government auspices. They raise about $500,000 of which forty per cent goes to charity. Quezon is determined to eradicate gambling in the Philippines and educate the masses to pay their taxes.

Fullerton and Riverside will have the honor of staging a two-out-of-three game series for the Eastern Junior college conference basketball championship, and the right to vie with Los Angeles of the Western division for the Southern California crown.

Feverishly extended throughout both halves, Fullerton called upon Capt. Tom Berkley, sub-her-legged black boy at center, to blast the titular hopes of Santa Ana's Dons before an overflow crowd of 1,000 screaming rooters at Fullerton last night.

The score was 41 to 36. Too much Berkley, who uncorked some bewildering long shots to corral high-scoring honors with 16 points, proved the downfall of Alvin Reboin's Santa Anas, who surrendered only after a game struggle.

Genial Art Nunn, giant coach of Fullerton's defending champions, was all smiles after the hectic evening. "That was what I call a real game," he said. "Santa Ana has a team that can be proud even in defeat."

All-Conference Erdhaus
Fred Erdhaus, sensational center who has been going like a house afire all season, clinched all-conference recognition with a dazzling display of basket-hitting that netted 15 points, one less than Berkley. Deprived of the tip-off by his limber-legged Negro opponent, Erdhaus made up for this deficiency with a fine floor game featuring one-handed shots from near the foul-line.

Fullerton was as hot as a Kansas sun. Ordinarily, Berkley is no wizard on long-range shots. He specializes on tip-in tosses that fall from the backboard. Last night, however, was an exception. He peppered the rim from far out, and 90 per cent of his throws either went in or came dangerously close.

The 1935 champions wasted few shots. They handled the ball in a cool manner, passed carefully, awaited their openings.

Lacy Lockhart Shine
Tommy Lacy and Leonard Lockhart, both in the running with Erdhaus for all-league recognition, played standout ball, Lacy breaking loose in the second half to cage seven of his 11 points. Lockhart was credited with two.

DIZZY HEADS LINEUP OF HOLDOUTS

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—With the baseball caravans either heading for the grapefruit league or forming on the left, ready for the take-off, a roll-call today disclosed at least 62 players have not yet signed 1936 contracts.

This represents only about 12 per cent of the athletes on current major league rosters but it also indicates there has been much more haggling than usual with the bosses who sign the paychecks.

Loudest, if not the most serious of the holdout "squawks" has emanated from Jerome Herman Dean, who has, in this respect, assumed the ample garments once worn by George Herman Ruth. Both Deans are holdouts on the Cardinal list, which also includes Pepper Martin, but Dizzy's demand for $40,000, which would make him the top-salaried player in either big league, involves the juiciest controversy.

Others conspicuously unsigned include Hank Leiber of New York Giants, Hank Greenberg of the World Champion Tigers, Van Mungo of the Dodgers and Babe Herman of the Reds. Among eight unsigned Yankees, Bill Dickey, Red Rolfe and Ben Chapman are rated the most stubborn contenders for more pay. Buddy Myer, the Senators' second base star and American league batting champion, apparently won't sign until he finds out how serious Owner Clark Griffith was about tagging him as worth $500,000, if sold to New York.

ARKY VAUGHAN SIGNS

Fullerton's Floyd (Arky) Vaughan is no trouble to the Pittsburgh Pirates, his employers.

Arky does his stuff in a big way in uniform, leading both major leagues in batting last season. Today he had dropped out of the ranks of the trouble-making "holdouts" after having sent his signed contract back to the Bucs.

Although Vaughan delays over his contract almost every year, this season he had definitely been labeled a "holdout." If he did "hold out" he probably got what he wanted. He said as much today, but would not disclose terms of the agreement, which will govern his work as shortstop for the Pirates.

Vaughan will leave Fullerton soon for the Pirate training camp at San Antonio, Tex.

From Boston, where the Red Sox are supposed to be just one happy pennant-hunting family, comes word that Johnny Marcum, the big Kentucky pitcher, wants $10,000 instead of the $7500 offered him. Zeke Bonura, first baseman, and Luke Sewell, catcher, both are reported to be demanding $15,000 from the White Sox. Last season Bonura drew $8500 and Sewell $10,000.

Johnny Allen, a former Yankee, wants $2500 increase, instead of the $500 offered by Cleveland.

SAN PEDRO, Feb. 20. (AP)—Glenn "Pop" Warner, football coach at Temple university, doesn't like the suggested change in grid rules that will abolish the "slow whistle."

"As long as a man is on his feet, he ought to be allowed to keep going," Warner said today. "I never knew a man to be hurt that way."

Warner returned on the Matson liner Malolo from Hawaii. There he coached a team of all-stars that won two games from the Honolulu town team, but lost to the Detroit Lions, national professional champions.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20. (AP)—The California Athletic commission is slated to meet tomorrow to consider an indefinite suspension motioned by Al Romero, rugged Mexican welterweight, because of his poor showing against Glenn Lee of Nebraska two nights ago.

Romero offered a listless effort and dropped a 10-round decision to the aggressive Lee, although he was expected to teach the Nebraska plenty of ring tactics.

The commission is to decide if the suspension is to be made for a definite period.

RACING CHIEF IS ATTACKED

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 20. (AP)—Governor Merriam forwarded today to Carleton Burke, Los Angeles sportsman, recently reappointed to the state horse racing board, a telegram of protest received from John S. Berger of Los Angeles.

Berger advised the governor he was "amazed and surprised" to learn of the appointment after Berger had filed charges against Burke and the governor had "promised a hearing before making any appointment."

Berger claimed the support of the "Protestant Church Federation of California, embracing 2700 churches" and declared he would get out a referendum to put the racing law on the November ballot.

From Boston, where the Red Sox are supposed to be just one happy pennant-hunting family, comes word that Johnny Marcum, the big Kentucky pitcher, wants $10,000 instead of the $7500 offered him.

Zeke Bonura, first baseman, and Luke Sewell, catcher, both are reported to be demanding $15,000 from the White Sox. Last season Bonura drew $8500 and Sewell $10,000.

Johnny Allen, a former Yankee, wants $2500 increase, instead of the $500 offered by Cleveland.

SAN PEDRO, Feb. 20. (AP)—Glenn "Pop" Warner, football coach at Temple university, doesn't like the suggested change in grid rules that will abolish the "slow whistle."

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20. (AP)—The California Athletic commission is slated to meet tomorrow to consider an indefinite suspension motioned by Al Romero, rugged Mexican welterweight, because of his poor showing against Glenn Lee of Nebraska two nights ago.

Romero offered a listless effort and dropped a 10-round decision to the aggressive Lee, although he was expected to teach the Nebraska plenty of ring tactics.

The commission is to decide if the suspension is to be made for a definite period.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20. (AP)—Patricia Henry, national girls' tennis champion, is the first co-ed in Occidental college history to win a man's varsity letter.

The college athletic council voted the award after "long and ponderous" debate. Miss Henry is the daughter of Bill Henry, sports editor of the Los Angeles Times.

DON RUGGERS PLAY U. S. C. TOMORROW

Football stars will predominate on the University of Southern California rugby aggregation which entertains Santa Ana's Dons in the Los Angeles Coliseum at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow. Coach Al Reboin's junior collegians were to play Pasadena Junior college here this afternoon.

Included in Coach Bill Haney's Trojan lineup will be Joe Prelinger, Santa Ana guard for U. S. C. in football, who plays in the scrum; Capt. Bill Howard, three-quarters; Joe Wilensky, Jim Sutherland, Jim Rorison, Bill Radovich and Glenn Thompson.

Although the Trojans will enter the game highly favored to win, Reboin's Dons should put up a stubborn fight. Reboin played stand-off at Troy last year and will give his team plenty of "inside" on S. C. opposition.

Santa Ana will use substantially the same lineup that was to oppose Pasadena at the Municipal Bowl today. Miles Norton and Roy Ware, 1933 football players, the former an all-conference tackle, will make their debut with Joe Herbert, scrum half; Ted Butterworth, three-quarters; Al Lambor, Jack Wilson, fullback; Major Anderson and Harold Mosman, wings; Fred Pinkston, hooker; Art Craft, Dick Connell, Al Titenor, "Bud" McBride, Ray Devine and Fred Lentz.

With more than 10,000 rabid fans packed into the Olympic auditorium, Vincent Lopez successfully defended his portion of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship here last night against George (the ex-Great) Calza of Italy.

Lopez, reigning favorite here, slammed Calza about the ring with elbow smashes to the stomach and jaw, putting Calza out of commission to win the first fall in 8 minutes 30 seconds.

He repeated the procedure, and took the deciding fall in 31 seconds. Calza was never able to hold a headlock on the thick-necked Mexican. The winner weighed 210; Calza, 230.

SAINT BASEBALL CARDED HERE
If the condition of Poly field permits, Santa Ana and Long Beach Woodrow Wilson High schools will play that twice-postponed baseball game at 3 o'clock here tomorrow afternoon.

Coach Clyde Cook plans to use his ace fliker, Jimmy Watkins, on the mound.

Oglesby Faces Big Task In Filling Jimmy Foxx's Job

CHICAGO, Feb. 19. (AP)—A fellow with the emphatic name of Jim Darn Oglesby from Polk County, Mo., faces just about the toughest job of all the 91 rookies who start showing off in American league training camps this month.

Jim Darn—his full name and birthplace are supplied in the handy compendium prepared annually by Henry P. Edwards, manager of the American league service bureau—is expected to become the Philadelphia Athletics' new first baseman. In other words, he will attempt to fill the huge vacancy created when Connie Mack held Jimmy Foxx to the Boston Red Sox.

Oglesby, who qualified for a chance at the job by batting .349 and driving in 130 runs for Los Angeles last season, is just one member of the biggest rookie squad in the league. The 72-year-old Mack will look over 21 recruits of various shades of green in his attempt to replace Foxx, Johnny Marcum, Roger Cramer, Eric McNair and others sold in his latest big auction.

WHITNEY NAG TAKES FAST WORKOUT

Trainer Warns Sprinter Likes Mud; Tick On, He Did Ambitious

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20. (AP)—Singing Wood bobbed to the front today to challenge whatever clinch the mighty Discovery, Top Row, Time Supply, Whopper or any other horse has to grab the big money in Saturday's $100,000 Santa Anita handicap.

The aristocratic son of Royal Minstrel, owned by Mrs. John Hay Whitney of New York's ultra-social circle, demanded, and received attention, with his latest workout. A recognized sprinter, a dangerous contender on a fast track against any handicap ace, Singing Wood turned in a mile and one-eighth in the mud in 1:54.

"If it comes up mud on Saturday," confided Trainer Bill Norton, "watch out for our horse. He just doesn't like mud in his eyes."

Still other horses were clamoring for a place in the sun where A. G. Vanderbilt's Discovery, A. A. Baroni's Top Row, Mrs. F. A. Carraud's Time Supply and Hal P. Headley's giant of the turf, Whopper, are presently basking in a pre-race glory.

Neil S. McCarthy's Tick On, with two straight victories in the mud to his credit, and He Did, Mrs. Silas B. Mason's colt, which won the $25,000 added Santa Anita derby last Saturday and now replaces the disabled Head Play as bearer of the Mason silks in the coming event—these are two ambitious contenders.

He Did won the derby at a mile and one-sixteenth in the mud, and yesterday stepped a mile and one-eighth in the same off-going in 1:56 3-5.

Another horse joined the withdrawal list when Trainer Matt Brady decided Flamenco, C. P. Palmer's English-bred candidate, was not ready for the test.

As it stands now, it appears the starters will include Discovery, Top Row, Whopper, Time Supply, Rosemont, Riskulus, Scotch Bun, First Minstrel, Pompey's Pillar, possibly Azucar, Thursday and Singing Wood.

BOOK REVIEW OVER KVOE TONIGHT

This evening at 5:30 on KVOE, Mrs. Muriel White will review the book "How to Spend Money" by Ruth Brindze, as the first of a series of book reviews to be scheduled Thursdays at the same hour.

Mrs. White is instructor in English and United States history in the adult education department, Santa Ana city schools. Previous broadcasts by her of book reviews and other subjects were popularly received and the new series promises to be interesting to a large number of listeners.

Among the headlines tomorrow night will be the weekly "Gems From Juvenile Literature" which will go on the air at 5:30 p. m. with cooperation of Orange county schools. Original songs and poems from second to eighth graders will be featured. The change will be Mrs. Mabel Spizly, head of the musical department of county schools.

The Shaler Hillbilly orchestra from the Shaler circus, which will be heard on KVOE at 6 o'clock with Mont Watson as master of ceremonies, and a brief but interesting talk by Captain Riskey who will discuss modern, high-compression motors.

Pianist Features
"Without a Word of Warning," "From the Top of Your Head," "It's Written in the Stars" and "Romance," last by LaForge, will be offered by Delle Hamilton, petite pianist at 6:45 p. m. in this, her second program of piano fantasies, scheduled every Thursday at the same hour. Delle Hamilton responds to requests sent to her in advance of her programs.

Waltz melodies of Franz Lehár and immortal selections by Franz Schubert will be offered during a brief program of instrumental classics at 7 p. m.

Music 'Revived'
A "revival" of that fascinating, nonsense tune that has broken all popularity records, "The Music Goes Round and Around," will be included in tonight's presentation of "Ritzy Rhythms" on KVOE at 7:45, as played by Tommy Dorsey and his Clambake Seven in the most popular arrangement. Other tunes will include "Up the River Road," "Accent on Youth" and "Rhythm in My Nursery Rhymes."

At 8:45 p. m. the Front Page Drama will portray the story of a facial surgeon who was forced to operate on a member of a criminal mob. Jean Colbert, featured six years on Broadway, will take the leading role.

Plans are progressing for the reunion at which Company L association will greet Captain "Neb" Holderman Saturday night in Veterans hall.

TOMATO GROWERS OF STATE PLEADED TO PRICE FIGHT

Virtually massed cooperation of growers throughout the entire state is pledged to the fight to obtain a $15 per ton price for tomatoes this season and the use of farm bureau contract forms, John B. Schneider, University of California specialist in agricultural economics, said on a visit here this week.

Mr. Schneider, who has recently completed a tour of the state for the extension division of the university in the interest of truck farmers, said the northern end of the state has recently fallen into line and is organizing in much the same manner as growers in the southern section.

Growers in Threat
He spoke before a meeting of growers in Los Angeles county Monday, he said, at which statistics were produced to show that $15 per ton is the minimum price at which tomatoes can be grown for a profit.

Growers everywhere, according to Mr. Schneider, say they will take out their tomato acreage and plant it in beans, barley or beets if the price raised for is not granted.

The controversy between growers and packers relative to the use of contract being used for purchase of the crop will be aired this week at a meeting of the agricultural marketing interim committee of the state assembly. The farm bureau and cannery representatives have prepared briefs in favor of the contract, and numerous farmers will testify as to specific grievances before the committee, it is expected.

Compromise Offered

A FOUR-CORNERED discussion of the Santa Anita Handicap to be run Saturday highlights Bing Crosby's show. Alfred G. Crosby, who owns a string of horses, but who hasn't been doing so well they say, will make up the fourth member.

THOUGHTS WHILE at home recovering from a cold Tuesday: In all probability one of radio's most charming personalities—Ted Malone... Al Jarvis is playing too many eccentric and jam tunes on his "Make Believe Ballroom"... Ozzie Nelson's recording of Ralph Freed's "There's a Whistle in the Thistle" is just about tops... Radio's best produced program—"March of Time"... Radio's biggest mystery—Why pay Mary Pickford something like $5000 a broadcast and then only give her a dozen lines to read during the half-hour? And Miss Pickford has one of the finest women's radio voices this dialer has ever heard... Frederick Stark developed that excellent technique for mood-setting you've heard on "Calling All Cars" during his years of scoring silent pictures...

BASIL CAMERON directs the Seattle orchestra on "The Symphony Hour." Cameron will conduct the organization in the "Prize Song" from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" heralding the presentation of this famous opera by the Metropolitan Opera Co. over NBC this Saturday. (KFI, 8:15)

WHEN IS 'MRS.' A 'MISS'?

Only When They're Famous

NEW YORK, Feb. 20. (AP)—This modern problem of what to call married women who continue using their maiden names has become, several men agreed today, nothing short of a headache.

When are they "Mrs."? when are they "Miss"? and why, after months or years of domestic bliss does "Miss Smith" suddenly, for a brief moment, decide to call herself by the name of the man she married?

Miss Dorothy Thompson, the writer, brought the whole baffling question into the spotlight recently when she attended one of Mrs. Roosevelt's luncheons under her married name of Mrs. Sinclair Lewis.

Fannie Hurst, the novelist, is a fairly frequent visitor at the White House, and she never goes as Mrs. Jacques Danielson, although she has been married to Danielson for more years than Miss Thompson has been married to Lewis.

Nor does Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins call herself "Mrs. Paul Wilson"—which she is—at Mrs. Roosevelt's luncheons or elsewhere in Washington.

The woods are full of matrons young and old who are attending luncheons, writing, painting, acting, singing, lecturing and swimming under the names they were born with—Katherine Cornell (Mrs. Guthrie McClintic); Ishel Ross (Mrs. Bruce Rae); Lynn Fontanne (Mrs. Alfred Lunt); and Joan Bennett (Mrs. Gene Markey) are just a few of them.

A few husbands of women in this vast and growing category were sounded out on the question. Their response was, in effect, "We don't mind—much."

Another illuminated sign dropped the "R" from "Big Bear" to advise the public that "Big Bear" was still available, foam and all.

The new, law abiding spelling transformed "Buffets" into "Cuf-fets"; "Taverns" into "Caverns" and "Inns" into the direct invitation of "Come In-S."

Don Marshall, chief enforcement officer for the state board here, admitted the new signs were puzzling in some instances but said they appeared to be legal.

SCHOOL AUTHORITY TALKS AT BEACH P.T. A. MEETING

"If your boy or student suddenly knocks over chairs, tables, or valuable knick-knacks and spills everything in sight on the best linen, don't reprimand him. Just put away the linen and replace it with oil-cloth and hide the valuables," Miss M. Gartman, director of city schools in Pasadena, admonished listeners as she spoke before a meeting of the Parent-Teacher association in the Laguna Beach High school Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Gartman, whose book, "Study of Social Attitudes at Junior High School Age" was reviewed at length in the recent issue of the P.T. A. magazine, spoke on "The Parents' Relation to Children in High School Life."

HEALTH LAWS SAVE 4000 LIVES IN COUNTY, REPORT ESTIMATES

SUTHERLAND TELLS WORK OF BUREAU

Cites Result Obtained Since Establishment Here 13 Years Ago

Application of modern health laws and regulations apparently has saved 4000 lives in Orange county in the past 13 years, it was estimated in the annual report of the county health department filed with the board of supervisors yesterday by County Health Officer Dr. K. H. Sutherland.

The health department was established on a full time basis in 1923.

"If the crude death rate (number of deaths per 1000 population) present in Orange county during the few years previous to 1923 had continued in force during the years since, there would have been 3936 more deaths in the county than there actually were," the report said. "More interesting still, a detailed comparison shows that about 3200 of these lives were saved from death due to infectious disease. Also, following the same line of figuring, we find that during this time 587 infants were carried through their first year of life who would have died had the old infant mortality rate persisted."

Saves Money, Too

This saving of life and health, said the report, has meant also the saving of money for medical and hospital treatment.

"As far as 1935 is concerned, we find that the health record was not so good as for 1934. A total of 7695 cases of communicable disease were reported this year as compared with 3748 for last. A measles epidemic in the spring of 1935 accounted for 4948 of these cases, with two deaths resulting. In addition, the latter months of 1935 produced a series of colds and upper respiratory infections, most of which were never reported to the health department."

"There were nine deaths from diphtheria in 1935, more than for several years past. Since there were only 72 cases of diphtheria during the year, this number of fatalities makes a very high mortality rate. . . . None of these cases had ever been immunized against diphtheria before the attack. In an effort to prevent diphtheria, health department doctors immunized 1303 individuals during the year, 448 of which were of preschool age."

32,583 Visits Needed
"The control of communicable disease requires a total of 32,583 visits by members of the health department. This is by far the greatest ever accomplished in the history of the department."

"The campaign to control tuberculosis has been zealously conducted during the past year."

Though much has been accomplished in this line over a period of several years, tuberculosis still remains one of our major health problems," the report said.

There were 180 new cases of tuberculosis reported during the year, and 81 deaths, making a death rate of 63.28, as compared with 149 cases and 71 deaths in 1934, giving a death rate of 56.3. The present rate, however, is a drop of 13 points from that of 1933, which in turn was an improvement over previous years. Forty-four of the tuberculosis deaths in 1935 were among Mexicans, 35 among Americans and two were Japanese. The increase in tuberculosis deaths occurred among the Mexican people, the report showed.

Continue T. B. Probe

The health department continued its examinations and tests to discover new tuberculosis cases. As a result 21 active cases were discovered, removed from schools and placed under supervision.

During 1935 there were 1256 deaths in the county, giving a crude death rate of 9.81 as compared to 9.4 for 1934, and 10.01, the average for the past five years.

There were 1886 births, an increase of 220 over 1934. Of these, 670 were of Mexican parentage, an increase of 250 over last year. There were 116 fewer American births than in 1934. The infant mortality rate was 64.16 as compared to 75.3 in 1934. Seventy-seven of the infant deaths were Mexican and 44 were American.

The health department conducted 394 regular health education clinics, both among Mexican and American mothers in an effort to curb infant deaths.

Trap 13,358 Rats

Four sanitary inspectors, responsible for seeing that a high standard of sanitation is maintained throughout the county, made a total of 31,067 inspections during the year. A rat extermination campaign was carried on, primarily in Santa Ana, in which 13,358 rats were trapped and 12,000 poisoned.

The health department, in cooperation with other local agencies, made 20,423 visits on school cases during the year, in a campaign to improve health of school children.

In the milk and dairy inspection field 3839 surprise samples of milk products were collected and examined and 6045 calls were made by the dairy inspector. Every dairy animal in the county was tested for tuberculosis, with the cooperation of federal and state agencies, with the result that 286 animals gave a positive reaction to the tests and were destroyed.

4065 Animals Examined

During the year meat inspection resulted in examination of 4065 animals at the time of slaughter. A total of 18,774 pounds of meat was condemned and so treated that it could not be offered for sale.

During 1935 a total of 16,511 medical specimens were submitted to the health department laboratory, upon which 24,365 examinations were performed.

The report said the health department in 1935 secured abatement of 1006 nuisances, correction of 1979 physical defects among children, improvement in nutrition for 1309 cases, improvement of sewage disposal arrangements in 673 instances, improvement in construction, equipment and management of 457 food handling establishments, as well as abatement of 58 unfit food handling establishments, obtained eight court convictions for violation of health laws and improvement of facilities and equipment of buildings to the estimated valuation of $70,552.

Great-Granddaughter of Gould and New Mate Now on Way East

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 20. (AP)—The former Anne Gould Meador, 22, great-granddaughter of the late Jay Gould, and Herman H. Elsbury, 24, Cody, Wyo., cowboy and "dude wrangler," today were believed on their way to New York City after their marriage here Saturday.

Elsbury, in a "super-gallon" sombrero, whipcord riding breeches and cowboy boots, the girl in a grey traveling suit, were wed by a Congregational minister whose wife and daughter were the only witnesses.

Mrs. Lillian Livingston, sister of the bridegroom living on a ranch 20 miles from Cody, said she had received no word from her brother since the wedding, but "thought they were on their way to New York" in her brother's new automobile.

She said her brother and his bride first met when she was a guest on the Sunlight dude ranch in the summer of 1933. Mrs. Livingston said the girl visited the ranch again last summer.

MWD COST WILL BE TOLD SOON

Reports on probable costs if Orange county should join the Metropolitan Water District either in whole or in great part, the water to be used for agricultural purposes, will be available within a short time, directors of the district said today.

Second of two meetings with MWD engineers relative to the possibility of water being brought in here in larger quantities than is now being planned was held in Los Angeles recently. Encouraging reports of progress were made by Directors William Schumacher and William Wallop.

Preliminary surveys seeking to establish the feasibility of constructing a long-distance tunnel from the main aqueduct through Black Star canyon into the county are being made by MWD engineers at present.

D. A. V.'S BALL IS TONIGHT'S BIG EVENT

Annual Military Dance Has Schumann-Heink as Honored Guest

Orange county residents have a date tonight at 9 o'clock at the Valencia ballroom when the Eighth Annual Military ball will be staged under auspices of Jack Fisher chapter, Disabled American Veterans.

Annually the most pretentious social affair staged in the county, the ball this year will have Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink as its honor guest. For the first time, too, navy officials have been able to accept invitations to attend the ball, special maneuvers having prevented their attendance previously.

Grand March at 9:30

Following the half-hour of drill team exhibition by Legion post squadrons from Santa Ana and Anaheim, the grand march will be heralded at 9:30 o'clock when beautiful evening dresses will join with military uniforms in a gala parade through the spacious ballroom.

Ted Craig, speaker of the state assembly, will preside at the intermission hour, introducing noted guests and James McGarrigle, tenor from Long Beach, who will give a musical program.

From all parts of the state will come representatives from veterans' organizations to participate in the celebration.

Harry S. Pickard, chairman of the county-wide citizens' committee sponsoring the ball, expects a larger attendance than on previous occasions. Hundreds of tickets have already been sold for the event and more will be available at the door tomorrow night.

Colorful Decorations

Patriotic bunting, flags and other colorful displays have been arranged under direction of Mrs. Fannie Reeves, "mother" to veterans of the county, who has been chairman of decorations for the event.

Ex-soldiers and officials of various drum corps and other military units will appear in their uniforms, adding a martial air to the occasion.

Throughout the evening, Don Cave's orchestra, famous for its appearances in prominent hotels of the country, will play for dancing. The ball is staged as a benefit for the rehabilitation and welfare of disabled veterans and their families. It was inaugurated eight years ago during the commandship of the late Jack Fisher, for whom the D. A. V. chapter has been named, its success mounting with each succeeding year.

Mary Stoddard Has She the Right to Love Again, or Shall She Stand by Her Present Responsibility?

Can you recapture the "dead and gone" past? This is the query behind today's letter from "Mrs. Nineteen," who has gone a long way into life in her short span of years. To her I would say, you seek a way out of the discontent you yourself have helped to create. To find your own happiness you would shirk the responsibilities of your home and child, and risk sorrow for two men rather than try to bring joy to the one you have married.

You had your chance to marry your first love. Now try to make the best of your life as it is, and see whether you cannot renew the sweet affection which was yours a few short years ago with your husband.

"Mrs. Nineteen's" letter follows: Dear Miss Stoddard: I am married, but in love with a single man. I have been married two years, and have a little girl 15 months' old. To begin with, I was not a wild girl, but I met and became very much infatuated (which I supposed at the time was love) with a young man of 20. He was the curly-haired baby-faced type and in a short while we were married, because it was necessary. He still claims he loves me, but he has a violent temper and mistreats both me and the baby. He has been so mean to me that I no longer hold any respect for him. I went with a fellow of 23 for two years steadily before I met my present husband and when I was married he was heartbroken. He had always worshipped me, and when I was forced to marry, he wanted me to marry him. I have told him how unhappy and dissatisfied I am, and he claims he still loves me. He has offered to pay for a divorce for me if I will marry him. Shall I leave my husband and take my baby or is it best to stay? I want to do the right thing by my baby and I don't want her to suffer.

Please print my letter, Miss Stoddard, as I am about at the breaking point. I have been ill since the birth of my baby and am extremely nervous, so my problem seems almost more than I can bear. This is one reason why I believe there should be a change made, as the doctor has prescribed quiet and rest.

RAILS BRACE STOCK LIST SLIGHTLY

By VICTOR EUBANK
NEW YORK, Feb. 20. (AP)—The stock market lost the best part of its punch today and turned irregular following a brief spell when rail shares braced the entire list.

Carriers were firm for the most part, and higher prices stood out here and there among the steels, motors and a fairly representative group of industrial specialties.

Power company shares were steady, but gains were limited. There were, however, enough losses here and elsewhere to stamp the market as irregular.

Both U. S. Steel and Bethlehem were about even and fractions were added to General Motors, Chrysler, Consolidated Gas, United Corp., New York Central, Pennsylvania and Studebaker.

Greater gains were made in American Telephone, North American, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Johns-Manville, Corn Products, and International Cement.

Losses showed in United Aircraft, Douglas, Loew's, Westinghouse, Electric, Electric Auto-Lite, Deere, Case, Commonwealth and Southern, Packard, Columbia Gas and Great Northern preferred.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Feb. 20. (AP)—Railroads came to the front in a final rally in the stock market today, which sent prices in many parts of the list to levels topping any in the past five years.

The ticker tape lagged behind floor transactions as the volume mounted to 3,500,000 shares. The closing tone was strong. Closing prices:

TURNER CO. HAS 10TH BIRTHDAY

Turner's Radio store, 221 West Fourth street, today is celebrating its birthday, after 10 years of continuous and growing business.

Specializing in Philco radios and many different kinds of electrical home equipment, the store had its beginning in 1925 at 118 East Fourth street. At that time its entire staff consisted of L. M. Turner, owner, and Nelson V. Edgar.

Since that time the company has grown to the point where it employs a staff of five men, one of whom specializes in service work and the other in office work. It moved to its present location eight years ago.

Harold Smith, salesman, has been with the company for nine years, almost equalling Mr. Edgar, salesmanager, in length of service. The remainder of the staff is composed of Meredith Williams, repair and service, Lester Perry, bookkeeper, and Clyde Musgrave, salesman.

The store, through its years of experience in the Santa Ana field, has progressed to the point where it can give excellent and painstaking service. Mr. Hill said today. Inspection by anyone interested is invited by the owner and staff.

One grandfather tree, 110 feet high and 10 feet in diameter, was felled two days ago with the use of only two common jacks and a light truck to give it a start.

Work of removing the trees is being done entirely by hand, furnishing labor at the present time to a crew of about 28 men and three supervisory workers.

Expert Chops 'Em
It's the old story of the North woods again, for at least one man who knows his way around when timber is falling on any side. That is Nevin Ward, a six-foot lanky timber-topper from Tacoma, who brought his own axe to the job.

Today he was growing at its being dull, although it looked as sharp as any razor. He hews to the line, and the chips fall where he says they may. Supervisor Caldwell says he is better than a calculating machine at bringing the unwieldy sticks to the ground. He, himself, says he'd rather be back in the deep snow where trees are trees and men really chop them down.

Most of the wood from the eucalypt is saved, sawed into eight-foot sections and hauled by truck to the Santa Ana cooperative, where it helps furnish a livelihood for at least 300 persons.

Delhi Mexicans, with little enough fuel for cooking their enchiladas, fall heir to the smaller pieces. It was like a scene from old Coronado today—whole families of swarthy-skinned children of the sun painfully picking and packing green twigs into bundles to be carried home.

Children Expert, Too
These they dry and stack for use as kindling and kitchen wood. In their way they are as expert woodmen as the crew who fells the trees, hacking and chopping with accuracy and little waste with their machetes. No piece is too small to be used.

And so, says Supervisor Caldwell, even though the South Main work is depriving Santa Ana of a slightly row of trees, it is removing a menace to safety and providing wood and work for many families and men.

When the project from Edinger street south is finished, South Main will have two full traffic lanes on the west side of the center line, and an eight-foot parking strip. The widening process will be gone through on the east side of the road eventually, it is planned.

BEEES MUST BE REGISTERED

Beekeepers in Orange county must register their bees as soon as possible, giving the number of their colonies and the location of apiaries, County Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs announced today.

According to a ruling received today from H. M. Krebs, supervising entomologist, apiary inspection, state department of agriculture, this registration must be accomplished on or before the first day of March each year. This is in accordance with the California agricultural code.

"In giving the location of such bees, the name of the ranch, section, township and range should be given where possible," Mr. Tubbs said. "This registration applies whether a person owns or possesses one colony or a thousand."

Special instructions have just been received by A. J. Burns, local agent for the Motor Transit Lines, that special reduced round-trip excursion tickets would be available from Santa Ana and other points on the Motor Transit System direct to the 26th National Orange Show in San Bernardino, starting tonight and continuing until March 1.

"This year the alluring and romantic beauty of the tropics is brought direct to the Orange Show in its Hawaiian-South Seas decorative motif," remarked Agent Burns today and added that Santa Ana residents taking advantage of the excursion rates and conveniences offered by the Motor Transit Lines to and from the big exposition would be well repaid by visiting the Orange Show.

Motor Transit buses have convenient schedules to the Orange Show leaving this city daily at 8:30 a. m. and 12:30 and 6:50 p. m.

Are You Self-Conscious, Unhappy, Lonely? Develop Charm and Change Things

By FRANCES TIPTON LONG
Noted Authority on Charm and Personality

When Catherine the Great of Russia gave receptions for the nobles and ladies of her court she printed upon placecards the following rules of etiquette:

"Gentlemen will not get drunk before the feast is ended. Noblemen are forbidden to strike their wives in company. Ladies must not wash out their mouths in the drinking glasses nor wipe their faces on the linen. Guests will refrain from picking their teeth with forks."

Of course, you don't eat with your knife or drink from your

The handwriting of John Boles shows poise, tact, good taste, musical appreciation, and ease of manner.

John Boles, whose handwriting is analyzed for charm today by Frances Tipton Long.

show personality
This handwriting belongs to a person who is hesitant, lacking in poise, self-conscious and ill at ease, especially in matters of etiquette.

saucer. You always rise when a lady enters the room, and you remove your hat in an elevator. You don't interrupt people when they are talking. But, do you know and practice all the rules of etiquette? Are your manners entirely above reproach?

So many of us unconsciously offend simply because we don't know any better. And nothing so quickly betrays us for what we are as a breach of etiquette, nothing so instantly undermines what may be in all other respects a most charming personality.

Self-Consciousness
If we are guilty of bad social usage, either through lack of knowledge or through carelessness, charm flies away from us. We become less attractive to other people, less popular, less successful.

Modern life, it seems, due to the more intense competition for success, has brought about much a short temper, irritability and lack of consideration for the rights, feelings and opinions of others. It has brought about both carelessness and disrespect for good manners. Yet good manners have always been an important part of the truly charming personality, and they always will be.

Nothing causes self-consciousness and a feeling of inferiority so quickly as not to know the proper thing to do or say. If you are not absolutely sure of the rules of etiquette, sure that you know the correct thing, sure that you practice it, then I would suggest that you secure a good book on etiquette and study it faithfully. Make its teachings a part of you, observe the rules, actual change in you. It will change your outlook on life, it will change your attitude toward other people. And, best of all, it will change the opinions of others, making them like you more and be willing to help you.

Not a Secret
There is nothing hidden about the charming personality. It grows under definite laws and it withers when those laws are broken. If you observe the laws you will gain greater self-confidence and greater esteem in the minds of others. Love, admiration, friendship, happiness and success always follow in the wake of the charming personality.

So, these things are yours for taking. There is no need for anyone to have an inferiority complex or to be unhappy, lonely or a failure. Build charm, improve your personality, and the best things in life will come to you—you won't have to hunt for them.

A charm analysis of your personality by Frances Tipton Long will tell you the exact truth about yourself, "turn you inside out" and expose both your virtues and vices. Of course, her service is strictly confidential and no one will see your analysis but you, and your name will not be revealed. So, if you have the courage to stand up and "take it," this is your opportunity to see yourself as others see you.

"Paths of Glory"

By HUMPHREY COBB

THE STORY SO FAR

The 181st regiment of the line, a crack French combat unit, is marching back to the trenches. It had been sent to a rest area only that morning after several days of severe fighting.

The tired soldiers are being hurried back into action following a conference between the army commander and the division commander—the hard-boiled, ambitious, efficient General Assolant. The army C. O. has told the latter that commander will receive a promotion because a German strong point, called The Pimple, has not been captured as had been reported erroneously in a daily communiqué. Assolant, at first objects to the feasibility of taking the "mound of dirt," but finally he promises it to his superior "for lunch" within two days after it is implied that Assolant will receive the coveted star of a grand officer of the Legion of Honor. The weary but valiant 181st has been picked as the spearhead of this smash at The Pimple. The soldiers are grudgingly grimly through the dark towards another blood bath. . . . A shell exploded in a group of poles, a large piece of it hitting the gallant Lieutenant Paolacci and throwing him into a deep chalk pit. And that was but part of the lethal damage inflicted by the direct hit as the 181st was relieving the Tirailleurs.

CHAPTER VI

The relief had been completed by midnight, and the high tide of a double congestion of men in the trenches was already ebbing fast. Thirty-two men of the 181st had been killed on the way in, and 17 Tirailleurs were being killed on the way out. None of them were killed as a result of the crowding caused by the other regiment, but everybody, from the two commanding officers down, entered into the passing and automatic sorrows of the casualties on the congestion, notwithstanding. Reason told them that the chances of a certain man being killed at any given moment were the same, whether he was standing alone or in a group. Reason, however, was not uppermost, but feeling was. And feeling was too strong to take heed of the paradox it engendered, the paradox of men rushing together for protection in the face of shell-fire, and their being convinced that if they were in a group, no matter how invisible to the enemy, they would attract shellfire and suffer the more from it.

The 181st had lost thirty-two men, the Tirailleurs seventeen. It wasn't a bad record for a relief during a heavy bombardment, nor did it make the slightest difference to the conduct of the war. Every day and every night men were being killed at the rate of about four a minute. The line remained the same, everything remained the same—uniforms, equipment, faces, statures, men standing at the same posts, listening to the same sounds, smelling the same smells, thinking the same thoughts, and saying the same words. Forty-nine men had been killed, and one set of collar numerals had been replaced by another. Rats weren't interested in collar numerals, so it made no difference to them either.

Intelligence officers, on the other hand, were interested in collar numerals, interested in learning those of the troops opposite and in concealing those of their own.

Towards one in the morning, when the artillery duel had died down somewhat, Captain Charpentier sent for Paolacci. A quarter of an hour later Lieutenant Roget entered the captain's dug-out to tell him that Paolacci could not be found.

"Yes," said Charpentier. "I heard one of his sections got it at the chalk pit. I saw some bodies there when I passed. He's probably gone back to see about them. Anyway, we're short of officers and I can't wait. So you'll have to do. By the way, have you ever been on patrol before?"

"Only once sir, when I was in the ranks."

"Well, you'd better take Didier then. He's an old hand at it. The colonel wants a reconnaissance patrol to go out. Hand me that map over on the bunk there. Look at this, that's The Pimple. This is our frontage, see, from here to here. There's the Boche wire, about five hundred metres or so from our line. You are to go out

County Registers Democratic

WITH the registration for this year's elections about two-thirds completed in Orange county, the figures show that for the first time in history Democrats have a slight lead over Republicans.

Or, more explicitly, of the 42,971 electors listed so far, 20,774 have designated themselves as Democrats, 20,674 as Republicans, 568 as members of minor parties, while 955 have "declined to state."

During the past years the G. O. P. has maintained a large lead on the registration books of the county, even though in the past presidential election it was unable to muster a majority at the polls. Figures are interesting:

	Republican	Democratic
Registration, 1930	37,154	10,692
Registration, 1932	37,921	21,712
Votes, election, 1932	22,242	23,696
Registration, 1934	34,117	29,994
Registration, 1934 to date	20,664	20,774

It is plain now that some significant further change of sentiment has been taking place in the rank and file of the voters. What this change is and what has brought it about is something that every political leader will endeavor to learn.

Perhaps the fury of recent concerted attacks upon President Franklin D. Roosevelt has reacted against their authors.

Perhaps the New Deal, so scornfully described by many papers and orators, after all has found the favor of the man in the street.

Perhaps the New Deal, with all its failures and constitutional defects, has won approval because as yet Republicans have offered nothing more constructive than a return to the Old Deal.

Perhaps the bickering for political advantage being indulged in by many leading G. O. P. candidates is creating an antipathy among voters who wish to see a real statesman enter the race.

Perhaps Townsend club supporters are deserting Republican ranks to enroll with the party which put through a pension program, although not their own.

Perhaps the general public has decided to make independent decisions of its own on political candidates and parties instead of voting like father did, or like party bosses recommend.

Whatever the feeling and whatever its cause, the fact is that many California counties are lining up in this new political formation. Politicians had better ponder this phenomenon. It may mean that the candidate must do more than simply wear the party label; and that he must offer a program which appeals to the voters.

Hauptmann's attorney now says he believes that Bruno is guilty of the Lindbergh atrocity. That is something the other 129,999,999 people in the United States have believed for a long time.

This Won't Hurt Much

GETTING a tooth pulled used to be a sort of major operation, shuddered about days in advance. The victim always got a lot of sympathy and considered himself a bit of a hero.

But today's dentists, says Dr. David W. McLean, "persuade" a tooth to come out, instead of strong-arming it. X-ray pictures, showing how the roots twist and twine, and how the bone formation exists, make it easy for the molar-yanker—and for the patient.

The idea of easing out teeth, instead of using up horsepower until something gave, came from the Japanese, says Dr. McLean. Japanese dentists were trained from birth to pull teeth with their fingers, and looked upon instruments as sissy. They got their training by pulling pegs out of holes, thus learning that a little skill can beat a lot of muscle.

Most of the terror has, in fact, been taken out of dental surgery. People now count on taking 40 winks while having a bicuspid plugged and plenty of them catch up on their lost sleep in the chair. An extra pillow under the head and a good detective story might be added to the usual office equipment, but the chairs are pretty comfortable, at that.

It's a long way from George Washington's day, when the village blacksmith was the official tooth-puller and worked by main strength.

Remember Rule 6

WHEN the late Dwight Morrow was ambassador to Mexico, people used to come running to him every 10 minutes with problems and crises, about which something had to be done right away, lest the heavens fall.

Mr. Morrow always used to smile gravely and say: "They will be all right—it is covered by Rule 6."

Rule 6, somebody discovered by investigation, was: "Don't take things too seriously."

That rule is worth remembering this year, when every politician Tom, Dick and Harry is out shrieking to the skies that our civilization is menaced, the foundations of the country are rocking and civilization itself will crumble—unless he's elected, of course.

Practically everything said by politicians on both—or all nine—sides, can safely be discounted at least 80 per cent. The residue should then be taken with a peck of salt.

Don't get the jitters if you hear that we're bankrupt; or that this or that fearful fate awaits us. It's just the boys, trying out their panic appeal on the voters—using the same strategy as the sock-suspender manufacturers who picture abject failure for young men whose socks sag.

Remember Rule 6, "Don't take things too seriously."

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

Sime Silverman's son Syd has become a sort of Man Nobody Knows in a world where life's major motif is personal three-sheeting. And in this shrinking obscurity has made his views felt in the theater, on the screen and on the radio. He's proved a surprise package. His father gave him Variety, the paper he founded, several years before his passing. On sudden impulse 10 minutes before going to press he went to the composing room and flew the boys' name at the masthead. It was in this way the next day the son learned of his proprietorship.

Most people thought it a mere sentimental gesture—they were great pals. But Sime evidently had a premonition. The two were precise opposites. Sime rough and tumble with a flair for bombast. A hail fellow, a check snatcher and one of the best loved roysters on Broadway.

The son, frail, shy, college bred seemed an incongruous successor. But Variety went right ahead, circulation increased and depression pay cuts were recently wiped out. Sime's faith was not misplaced. Young Silverman is happily married to the former Marie Sax-on, dancer.

So many who came newspapering in New York bewilder by its future and greatness, snooting and double dealing found Sime Silverman an anchor of strength and inspiration. He had been through the mill and knew how to take it—and come back for more. I remember writing him one day about a worry that seemed portentous. He wrote across the bottom: "Tuck this away and look at it six months from now and have a belly laugh." I did and did.

That was, of course, a variant of the small town philosopher—every village claims him—who stopped his whittling one day to yawn. "I've had lots of troubles in my time but most of them never happened." Still a honey to remember when everything goes black.

Some analyst could write a magazine piece on the ways hunger for certain foods are destroyed. Laurence Stallings was once a lover of link sausage. On a battlefield one day he came upon a body. Clutched in a hand was a sausage the victim had been eating when killed. Stallings could never eat such meat again. Corot, the painter, loved wild game as food. One day a wounded wild duck fell on his farm, became domesticated and a great pet. Corot was never able to eat fowl of any kind.

On the grand boulevards near the Place Bastille I used to pass a place boulangerie which displayed the most tempting cream puffs I ever beheld. They have been a favorite delicacy since the boyhood days of Mrs. Jenny's ice cream parlor. Somehow or other I was always in a taxi or walking in a hurry when passing the place and never stopped. One Sunday morning I made a special trip to procure a batch for dinner. There was the same fabled display. Opening the door tinkled a far-away bell. The proprietress appeared smiling. I bought a dozen but with no gusto, and on the way home dropped them in a wastebasket. Never after have I been able to eat cream puffs. The proprietress was heavily mustached!

EVERYDAY MOVIES

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—History probably will record the munitions investigation, now nearing its last sessions, as one of the most useful in senate annals. But its untimely termination is clouded in an atmosphere of backstage politics and petty personal bickering.

Two mistakes prevented the committee from doing the kind of job it might have done, and from continuing unimpeded until the job really was finished.

The first was the appointment of a Republican as chairman, Senator Gerald Nye, who introduced the munitions resolution—deserved to be chairman, but repeated experience has proved it inadvisable to place a minority member at the head of an important investigating body. There are invariably certain majority members who, secretly opposed to the probe, will make use of partisan prejudice to attack it.

This was the case with the munitions inquiry. From the very start, Democratic leaders balked at giving Nye the funds he asked for. Democrats would have had little difficulty. But a Republican—well, that was different.

The other big mistake was Nye's failure to grasp what Jim Reed, acid-tongued one-time senator from Missouri, once expressed to John T. Flynn.

Flynn had made Reed a lush offer to write memoirs of his various political battles with Woodrow Wilson. Reed refused.

"There is one thing I have learned about life," he said. "Never attack a saint. Woodrow Wilson is still canonized." Nye made the mistake of attacking Woodrow Wilson. After that his committee appropriation was doomed.

Members of congress returning from their junket to the Philippines were chiefly impressed by the attempts of the large army garrison stationed there to sabotage Philippine independence.

The military, according to visiting congressmen, did everything possible to see that the regime of President Manuel Quezon got off on the wrong foot.

The first thing they did was to spread the rumor that President-elect Quezon was afraid of being assassinated, therefore would not appear in public.

Congressional friends of Quezon, who knew him as a Philippine delegate to congress, investigated, found the President-elect was suffering from stomach ulcers, was saving his strength for the inaugural ceremonies.

One Man's Opinion

By Duncan Ellsworth Clark

EDITOR'S NOTE.—Here is an informative, analytical daily feature on current topics. The opinions expressed in this column are not necessarily the same as those held by The Journal.

Author Lewis and Czar Hays; a Reward for Caution FILMING of Sinclair Lewis' novel, "It Can't Happen Here," has been halted by Movie Czar Will Hays. Seems the fear of getting involved in partisan politics and of stirring up emotions in European dictators called for the order.

Czar Hays has developed a marked horror for partisan politics since he was the chief patronage-dispenser in the Harding regime.

Just why Americans should be worried about what Mussolini and Hitler would think of the film is a question. We haven't often been so careful of the good opinions of foreign powers. But dictators are a sensitive lot. If we try to avoid offending them we shall have to watch our step. "Insults" may be so trifling sometimes. The by-play of American politics and press is always more or less of a puzzle to everybody outside of the country.

Probably neither of the reasons mentioned for stopping the filming of "It Can't Happen Here" had any real point. If they had, discovery of them would have been made before $200,000 had been

AUTO RADIOS

To the Editor: With such a heavy automobile accident toll, has anything been done to see what proportion of cars whose drivers commit accidents have radio installed in their cars? Surely they should be prohibited anyway, as it is difficult to give undivided attention to driving surely when there is a radio going full blast and possibly a passenger in the front seat, too.

D. S. ASHDOWN.

CLASS FOR RESPECT

To the Editor: No doubt there will be those who object to our Olympic contestants greeting Hitler and other Nazi party leaders, regarding them as party members. Where such feelings would lead to may be seen by considering our own case. Doubtless tory foreigners as well as our own Tories dislike the New Deal of the incumbent administration—should they then ignore Frank Roosevelt because he is the leader of the New Deal? He is also President of the United States—the head of the state, living representative of every American citizen.

In the same way Adolf Hitler is by law reichsfuehrer as well as kanzler—the Reichstag had authority to amend the Constitution of Weimar. He is therefore the head of the German state.

Similarly, Edward of Windsor is by act of parliament the symbolic head of the British state (though not of the government as the two previously mentioned are). The same respect as to the other two heads of states is here called for, and is not "royal toadying," but the respect due a free nation.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM

(Detroit Free Press)

Senator George W. Norris is an experienced, veteran politician who has studied public reactions for a long time and knows his way around.

When he says the methods that Jim Farley uses in connection with postmaster appointments are going to cost President Roosevelt millions of votes next fall, and suggests the compulsory retirement of the Postmaster General, he is saying something a friend which the White House cannot afford to ignore.

There is no doubt, however, that a whole lot of people both in and out of his party resent his crude assumption that it is possible to Tammanize the whole United States.

W. A. W.'S RETURN

(The Emporia Gazette)

We have seen many flags flying on many seas. But never in all the time we have been here have we seen a people so happy, so sturdy, so prosperous even in the depression, so well fed, so well clothed, so well educated, so hopeful as the American people. And no other flag is floating so fine and gay over so much justice, even amid a depression and want, as our flag flying bravely over the civilization.

More than all that, no town in all our far wandering seemed so beautiful as Emporia. This morning the frozen mists had outlined the trees and the shrubs and the houses in crystalline silver beauty. The grass was matted with a light snow. It was as if the ghost of spring waiting to be born had been hovering over the town ready to descend, bringing its day of joy. How lovely it was! How good! How American! How beautiful!

It would do us all good to laugh for half an hour after every meal.—Dr. James J. Walsh, Fordham University sociologist.

SKINNY SKRIBBLES

Around and About Town

My friend Charley Clarke, from Fairfield, pokes his head above the Iowa snowdrifts, to say hello, and some other things uncomplimentary about the Hawk-Eye state climate. He drifted in yesterday and confides that it's the worst weather he ever saw. That automobile travel is a one-way lane, and if by any chance you have to dispute the right-of-way with your neighbor it requires more diggin'. When you consider the drifts run all the way from four to 25 feet high, the best you can expect is to hope the blockade happens at the four-foot level. When you former Iowans get to the annual picnic in Los Angeles this month you will have something to talk about, and make some comparisons.

Bert Wheeler, comedian, wasn't so funny to his wife, so she got a divorce.

A friend of Charley Chapman's sends him a trade journal which contains information other than lumber. The editor was straying around the Chicago loop and encountered a good natured crowd before a lingerie shop where a demonstration on "inflation" was in progress. Everything was going lovely until the window dresser put up a sign: "We fix flats." Now you start from here.

And then the grand jury adjourned without making any recommendations on how to conduct the Ethiopian war.

Wayne Goble is now editor of The National Oil Derrick, an independent publication with headquarters in Los Angeles. Next time I go to converse with him I'm going to ask him how to get the oil on a level with the derrick. You see some friends of mine own a derrick, but that isn't enough. At least they are not satisfied. They prefer the oil under the derrick. Now Wayne, you got a chance to do some old friends a good turn, and we are not particular whether its independent or corporate.

Note on my d. : noon Wednesday. Party comes in to request my presence for luncheon engagement. If he makes it to-morrow I'll go.

Carl Mixer wants to know if I have quit worrying about the rain. He was satisfied until I told him that I was satisfied, but a lot of other fellows had started where I left off so the anxiety was on again. The proposition is now beyond my control. You may expect floods most anytime now.

My friend Ralph Mosher is sick. If he doesn't hurry up and get well and come and see me, I'll have to go and see him. Now whose move is it?

There is a similarity in hats, but a dissimilarity in heads. Of course you never picked up a hat which looked like your own and found it wasn't when you put it on your head, but it has been done. Oh, yes, to bring a long story Roy Shaffer got back his hat, and Bill White couldn't use Roy's, so they lived happily ever after.

I'm envious of the Santa Ana chamber of commerce. It's a debt. I'm going over and try to persuade Howard Wood to divulge the secret. Gee, it must be a comfortable feelin' not to owe anybody.

Wouldn't it be interesting to know what Harry Carr thinks about his friend McGroarty being a presidential candidate. I imagine Harry would say: Back to the green Verdugo Hills.

Three automobile dealers. Nope, you're wrong. The conversation was not cars. It was taxes. Ever hear about taxes? Well, there's a long sheet of paper on my desk which you can turn over, and then there is another sheet of paper, and you keep turning it over to answer questions, and when you get through the abundance is out in front ready to take you to Norway.

Oil and water won't mix, but it don't take a chemist these days to prove that alcohol and gasoline do mix. Why not reducing the awful death toll on the highways. Socking the dizzy motorist after the accident does not remedy the trouble. Why not try a different plan for awhile? Why not offer real inducements for a careful driver? Why not demonstrate that hope of reward is a stronger deterrent than is fear of punishment?

Why not give good drivers a reward for their good record? Say, as a Christmas present, give a motorist a $100 present if his record has been clear for that year. Or $50, or $10. Let all the fines and assessments from traffic violations go into a fund for that purpose. Let the violators pay the rewards to those who observe the traffic laws. Some definite good might follow from such a plan.

Mention in this column about the passing of Waldo E. Winslow brings from Pete Beissel and Fred Newcomb testimony of approval. Mr. Winslow was one of the early business men of Santa Ana, and conducted a shoe business in the old French property, at a time when Charley Kelly had a drug store at Fourth and Main. Pete worked for Mr. Winslow from 1902 to 1912, then bought an interest in the business. This partnership continued until Mr. Winslow retired in 1920. Then Fred Newcomb and Pete operated the business. Their unreserved praise for their former employer and partner is worthy of the man on whom it is bestowed.
